

Waldmünchen book from 1988 paragraph translated by Georg and Debbie Blau. Here is the source: Geschichte der oberpfälzischen Grenzstadt Waldmünchen [History of the Upper Palatinate border town, Waldmuenchen].

Printed 1988 by Morsak Verlag Grafenau.

A reprint of original books written by Franz Xaver Lommer in 1888, 1890, 1894 and 1915, and Heft 5 notes.

[page 58, Heft IV, 1915]

Nach dem Brande von 1864, wo auch Kommunebräuer abbrannten und durch Sammlung bei den Berufsgenossen in Bayern 220 f. als milde Beiträge erhielten, erbaute sich Daniel Brückl am Marktplatz (2 Häuser unter dem Löwenbräu) 1866 ein eigenes Bräuhaus hinter seinem Wohnhaus, welches seit 1871 in den Besitz des Joh. Nep. Schmid, Bräuersohnes von Gleißenberg, übergegangen ist.

Translation:

After the fire of 1864, when the community brewery also burned down, a collection was taken by the trade association in Bavaria and 220 florins was contributed. With this money, Daniel Brueckl built his own brewery in 1866 on the market square (2 houses below the Loewenbraeu brewery). This was located behind his home. In 1871 Johann Nepumuk Schmid, a brewery owner's son from Gleissenberg, took over ownership.